

Use of Facilities by Political Organizations

College facilities may be licensed for partisan political purposes including fundraisers at such times when the facilities are not in use for the University's primary educational and research mission. When this occurs, the political organization or candidates must be charged the fair market value, because any lesser charge may be deemed to be an unlawful contribution by the college or to the particular organization or candidate.